INTRODUCTION

Teaching English today seems to be an interesting discussion among English teachers and instructors either at formal or at nonformal educational institutions. Teaching English includes aspects such as listening, speaking, vocabulary, structure, reading and writing.

Two factors that may influence someone in learning language are motivation and method. Harmer (1985) says that there are two main types of motivation. First, extrinsic motivation which what takes place in the classroom. Something that should be remembered is that the method by which students are taught must have effect on their motivation. If the learners find it deadly boring they will probably become discouraged, whereas if they have confidence in the method they will find it motivating.

It is known that it is difficult to separte the method used in teaching English because the aspects of language skills relate to each other closely. Thus, for example, the method applied in teaching structural items can also be used for presenting vocabulary items and vice-versa. Therefore in in teaching language ; a teacher often uses various methods or combination of techniques for teaching one aspect of language skills.

The difficulties in learning English particularly for vocabulary items are experienced by most foreign language learners. These can occur in various aspects such as how to spell the words, pronounce the words, use the words in context and comprehend the meaning of the new words in their native language. Of course there are some alternative efforts that can be made to overcome the learners’ difficulties. One of them is to apply the methods and techniques effectively and usefully. Starting from the explanation mentioned above, the writer tries to make a paper. In this work the writer manages the presentation of vocabulary items through dialogue.

STATEMENT OF THE PROBLEM

Particularly for this research, the writer states the problem as written below.

“Is the presentation of vocabulary items through dialogue effective and useful in teaching vocabulary skills?”

THE PURPOSES OF THE RESEARCH

Generally, every activity which is carefully planed has certain purposes. The aims of this investigation are as follows.

1. To help the learners to master English – particularly to use the new words in context
2. To find more effective and useful ways for presenting vocabulary items.
3. To give information to English teachers in teaching vocabulary skills.

METHODOLOGY

The writing of this work is based on the theories which relate to the topic discussed. The works that are discussed in this paper have been researched in the library. From the supporting theories that are found in the books, the researcher tries to study them in order to solve the problem which is always experienced by most foreign language students.

REVIEW OF RELATED LITERATURE

In teaching foreign language, the method plays an important role. The method may be associated with the ways used to present language items. Or it can be said that various situations and conditions created in teaching and learning process in transferring the new language items to the students. Hubbard (1983) says that a method is a set of procedures or collection of techniques used in a systematic way. Therefore people often apply the method and combination of techniques for teaching each language skill.

Many books on language teaching mention the different ways of presenting... new lexical items. In this case, Hubbard (1983) asserts that some points to bear in mind in presenting new vocabulary items are: (1) teach and practice the words in spoken form first, then the students try to pronounce the words as they are written. (2) Put the words into context and get the students to practice them. (3) Present the vocabulary items in a memorable way to start with. Mean while Doff (1988) states that there are few techniques for teaching new words, they are: (1) Say the words clearly and write it on the board. (2) Get the class to repeat the word in chorus. (3) Translate the words into the students’ own language. (4) Draw a picture to show what the word means. (5) Give an English example to show how the word is used. (6) Ask questions using the new word.

Other opinions about how to teach vocabulary items are stated by Harmer (1983). According to this author, there are some ways which can be used in presenting vocabulary items such as (1) Realia. It means that the teacher brings real objects into classrooms and shows them to the students. (2) Pictures. Pictures can be used to explain the meaning of lexical items. (3) Mime, Action and gesture. (4) Contrast, when the visual elements (e.g. picture, realia, mime, etc.) may not be sufficient to explain the meaning of the words, contrast can be used. (5) Enumeration (list). In this case, the teacher can make a list of food or list of vegetables. (6) Explanation. The teacher explains the meaning of vocabulary items by using phrase and definition. (7) Translations. Sometimes the teacher has to translate the meaning of words into the students’ native language.

Brown (2007) proposed five principles for teaching vocabulary: giving the opportunity to the student in special vocabulary learning time and class, helping students to learn vocabulary in context, using the role of bilingual language, encourage students to develop strategies for determining meaning of words, and be ready in “unplanned” vocabulary teaching. Then, theory from Hall (1995) as cited in Tomlinson (2007) outlined 4 principles in material development: need to communicate, need for long term goal, need for authenticity and last need for Student-Centeredness.

In teaching vocabulary items may be not all techniques and method mentioned above can be applied at once. Also it is very different for the teachers to use only one technique to present lexical items. Therefore in making this work, the researcher tend to combine two or more techniques to teach the vocabulary items. In this points of view, this author gives examples of presentation of vocabulary items through dialogue in her book which is called “Teaching English Through English”. And in the following example of the presentation of lexical items, the writer imitates the way which is used by the author, but the words which will be taught are different. Hornby (1995) states that vocabulary is the total number of words of language or vocabulary is arrange of words known to, or used by a person in trade, profession, etc.

Futhermore, it is necessary to explain that before presenting the vocabulary items, the teacher has to determine what techniques will be used and classify the new words which will be presented in the classroom. To choose the techniques aims to find out the procedures which are supposed to be more suitable and more practical. Then, to classify the words means to group the new words based on their classification, formation and characteristics.

THE PRESENTATION OF VOCABULARY THROUGH DIALOGUE

The Example of the Presentations Stage

This is an elementary class. The students of this class will be taught some new words about the names of stationary. In this case, the teacher brings real things to the classroom such as pen, book, ruler, a piece of paper, pencil, etc. To make the students know the name of the things above, the teacher teaches them through a dialogue as written below.

Note: T= Teacher, Ss= Students, S= Student

T : Look. What is in here? What is this?
Ss : Do not know
T : Well. It is a pen. pen. can you say it?
Ss : It is a pen
T : Good. Say it again. Pen.
Ss : Pen.
T : Good. It is a pen. Everybody! What is this?
Ss : No.
T : Well. In English we say “book”.
Ss : Book.
T : Good. Everybody! It is a book.
Ss : It is a book.
T : Good. Now Yanto! What is this?
S : It is a book.

The Presentation of Vocabulary Items Through Dialogue
The Presentation of Vocabulary Items Through Dialogue

The teacher finishes checking their learning, then goes on to present a dialogue to practice the new words in the same way until the meeting time is up.

The Advantages of Presentation Through Dialogue

When it is viewed from the involvement of the students in the classroom. This will bring a good effect to the learners. Through the direct communication in the class, the learners will be active in using it in context. They not only recognize the new words but they are also trained to practice the words in various forms of sentence. Wehmeir (2005:1707) states that vocabulary is the list of words with their meaning especially in a book for learning a foreign language. According to Gribb (2002:74) vocabulary is one important language component. Nation & Newton (1997:45) states that vocabulary is knowledge of words and words meaning.

The active bilateral and multilateral interaction in teaching languages is very necessary. This will make the students practice their language or produce their new target language many times. By repeating the new words a few times, the new language items will be integrated in the learners’ minds. Cameron (2001:75) claims that someone who has a lot of vocabulary of foreign language, she/he could learn language easily.

The way of presenting vocabulary items through a dialogue can cause the learners to accustomed to apply the practical sentences. And by using this way they can also improve their pronunciation and action in speaking English. And it can also be said that in this way the students are assisted to master other language skills (e.g. speaking, structure and listening) consciously or unconsciously as well as vocabulary.

The Weaknesses of Presentation Through Dialogue

The writer realizes that this way also has some new words in a meeting. The teacher cannot present many new words in a meeting. The teacher has difficulty in involving each of the learners satisfactorily in a big class. When an instructor wants to engage all students by giving each a turn to repeat a word or a sentence, the instructor will spend more time for a meeting; otherwise he or she only can present some words. Also the preparation of this presentation is more difficult than other presentation. The teacher has to decide what kind of words will be presented. When the teacher would like to teach some words, for instance verbs, he or she has to think how to use those words (verbs) in context or sentence so that the learners can memorize the words easily. But if the planning of the presentation is not so clear, it will be difficult to be applied.

CONCLUSION

After analyzing the description or
The presentation of vocabulary items through dialogue in the previous discussions, the writer comes to the following conclusions. First, by applying the presentation of vocabulary items through dialogue, the students are trained to produce or use the target language orally. Second, the presentation of vocabulary items through dialogue is supposed to be more effective; because this way can make the learners form their habit formation in using English, especially for elementary level or for the beginners. Third, the preparation through dialogue should be carefully managed; otherwise, it cannot be applied satisfactorily. Fourth, it is difficult to use this presentation in teaching vocabulary items in a big class with many new words; because the time available for a meeting is limited.
